

Comentarios sobre el video Hollysiz recogidos de Youtube:

1.

Nico Lee 4 years ago

Really you don't even have to take this as a video about transgender people, although of course it could be taken that way, and that's a wonderful way to take it ^^ Really you could just see this video as pointing out how ridiculous gendered items are. Why can't guys wear dresses? I'm a guy and I wear dresses and skirts all the time. I don't see anything wrong with it- they look nice and I like wearing them. Nothing more to it than that.

2.

Penny Threlfall 4 years ago

I'm the mother of a daughter who NEVER identified as female. Sure I wish she had worn pretty dresses, played with dolls, enjoyed tea parties with her girlfriends and played dressups BUT that wasn't who she was. Instead she wore shorts, played with cars, trucks and boys, was in both cricket and baseball teams and played as well if not better than most boys. I've been saying to people since she was 2 years old that she's a boy in a girls body. Do I love her as she is, for who she is and how she feels ~ A B S O L U T E L Y. And I wouldn't have her any other way, she's my special child [now in her 30's]. Love ya CJ.

3.

Rin Lockhart 5 years ago

It's terrifying, absolutely terrifying, on how strong social norms are and how shackled we are to them. Innocent people have been murdered because they haven't conformed to being 'normal'. Shit like that haunts me.

4.

lalobee 5 years ago

Parents have just one job: To help their kids find THEIR identity, NOT to define it.

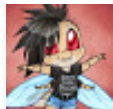

5.

Drowning in Sunlight 5 years ago

Holy shit, I looked through the comments expecting a lot of hate and judgement, and all I found was people who understood, or are trying to understand. Thanks everyone for restoring my faith in humanity a little, you're all great people =)

6.

Flyqueen 5 years ago

This reminds me of my brother who wanted to have long (like really long) hair as a 10 year old kid. It grew and he had beautiful hair, he loved it and it fit him. He got teased a lot for "looking like a girl" and one time my grandma didn't let him in her house "because he looks like a girl and that's shameful!" (10 year old boy got the door smashed in his face and had to wait in the rain for my parents!). My Mum and my Dad where shocked and broke with her after that, but they didn't give in and my dad even stopped cutting his hair too to show my brother that he totally supports him (and to show my grandma...) Today my brother has a modern male haircut. Because...he likes it better that way now (long hair is a pain to wash XD). He is a normal guy like everybody else. Not more feminine or masculine then other people. Just normal. The only difference is, that he has self-confidence and knows that he can be whatever he wants. And that his proud dad will always stand besides him :)

8.

Michał 2 months ago \(edited\)

I wasn't expected this..... this was soo good! I loved the fact that mother protected him/her no matter what and she accepted the way she is, but the ending with the father... freaking onion ninjas!!

9.

TheSmileyThatShouldHave1kSubscribers 6 months ago

I'm a girl and I really do believe I am...I just look completely like a boy and I like it that way. Short hair, men's clothes, and no makeup. I have gotten so many stares when I go into the bathroom it's unbelievable. My mom keeps asking me when I'll wear a dress again. My brother constantly tells me I look like a guy when I come home from a haircut. It's sad the amount of pain you have to go through to be you."

10.

Camilla Gisslow 8 months ago

I am and was the mother - to my transgender child 22 year ago and through his whole upbringing. But his dad never could....

11.

freak10 1 year ago

I like that u don t know if the kid is a boy that likes typical "girl things" or if it is a girl or nonbinary person 12.

TurtleKing777 1 year ago

You either accept your child or you have a dead child thats how it works. Doing this shit, forcing them to "change" only increases the risk of your child either killing themselves or never talking to you again.

13.

2 תומר ביכובסקי 2 years ago

Hi, i dont know if you still read the comments here. But i just wanted you to know how much impact that video had on me. Its the thing that made me understand who i am. I wouldnt be alive here to write this comment without this video. You gave me the chance to live a full and happy life, you helped me to understand myself finaly, and by that you helped me to love and accept myself for who i am. Thank you so so much.

14.

kate clarke 2 years ago

This made me cry so much. Exactly what I'm going through with my son dad doesn't support it coz too afraid of what others think.